WORKPLACE TRAINING

The majority of your training is 'workplace based'. This allows us to deliver hands on training that specifically targets the requirements of your job role whilst contributing towards productivity.

It is our aim that you meet and exceed industry requirements.

Example; if one of your chosen competencies is AHCMOM202-Operate Tractors.

"There are many makes, models, weight, capacity and variations of tractor. Some are for small acreages slashing grass whilst others are huge being articulated and towing 20 metre air seeder units.

We will endeavour to equip you with the knowledge and skills to operate as many as practical."

The overall objective of Training by 'Eastough's Ag Training' is to enhance the work capability of all students by assisting them to improve job related skills & underpinning knowledge in workplace related tasks.

- Assisting you to develop and work through training.
- Assisting you to gain job pathways.

Therefore, our preferred method of training delivery is face to face, IE, discussion, demonstration and structured practice. This is supplemented with workplace documentation and varying learning resources. You may also be required to complete a project or build a portfolio.

WORKPLACE ASSESSMENT

As per the training delivery, your assessment sessions will be based on the same format. IE, you will be assessed as you perform the unit of competency during the normal course of your employment. If the assessor is unable to witness your work performance, then a simulated exercise will be requested. The theory component will be a written exam and verbal discussion for a more in-depth knowledge assessment. Your performance will also be supported by an employer representative or a workplace referee. The assessor may request reassessment or that you perform a portion of the unit at a later date.

SHORT COURSES

Short courses are offered face to face on demand.

RPL and credit transfers

All prospective students will be offered RPL and credit transfers during the unit selection stage of their enrolment.

EAT recognises AQF qualifications and statements of attainment issued by any Registered Training Organisation in Australia.

Tips & hints to help you show your skills for recognition.

There are many forms of assessment available to gain Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL).

In order to have skills formally recognised in a national system, assessors must make sure you have the skills and knowledge to the industry standard. This means you must be involved in a careful & comprehensive process that really covers the content of all of the units or qualifications you are applying for recognition. Your skills & experience from the past 2 years are the most important in the assessment because this shows you are current in the industry. Assessment can happen in a variety of ways. Being prepared can save you lots of time & hassle. Here are some tips & hints to prepare for a recognition process.

1. Browse through the descriptions of units that relate to your work. This will help you to get an idea about where your skills could fit with national training units. You can get full details of any unit from your training provider.
2. Plan & perform with the RPL Assessor which units would be better assessed by doing workplace observation or 'walk-through' which can be a fast & comfortable way for you to demonstrate your skills & knowledge.
3. Be prepared to talk about your job roles & your work history. Bring a resume or jot down a few points about where you have worked, either paid or unpaid, & what you did.
4. Think about who can confirm your skill level. Think about current or recent employers/supervisors who have seen you work in the past 2 years & will be able to confirm your skills. We will need to contact them. You may also have work colleagues or even clients themselves who can vouch for your skill level.
5. Collect any certificates from in-house training or formal training you have done in the past. E.g.; forklift ticket, low stress stock handling course, first aid etc. A copy of these is required.
6. You can speak with the training organisation about other ways you can show your skills. These could be letters from employers, records of your professional development sessions, acknowledgements, workplace forms (as long as they don't show confidential work place information) or other relevant documents
7. When all documentation is complete a EAT trainer will organise a time to do a on farm practical assessment.

LLN (Literacy, Language and Numeracy) test, requirements and support

It is Eastough's Ag Training's requirement that all prospective students complete an LLN test to assist in determining the level of adjustment, assistance or support required, if any.

Welfare and guidance services

Eastough's Ag Training staff are able to provide referral to appropriate organisations for your support. Eastough's Ag Training offers referral to welfare, guidance, & external support services to all students. The nature of the information required can either be one of training/assessment nature, external support aspect, or that of a private matter.

Students with physical or mental impairments may require adjustments to the workplace Assessment of workplace facilities, equipment. The following processes will be applied for students considered to be at risk.

EAT is at all times concerned with the welfare of our students. Staff will counsel students as appropriate and/or refer them to qualified counsellors. Staff are required to respond to and attempt to alleviate any signs of distress, discomfort or risky behaviour by students, and to actively render appropriate support and assistance.
